At its core, fraud and forensic accounting addresses problems—whether intentionally created or not—that arise from weaknesses in an organization’s internal controls. Internal controls provide clear guidance to an organization, its leadership and its governing interests (whether they are family business owners, entrepreneurial investors, nonprofit board members or elected officials) by defining the methods for ensuring that all parties understand and abide by transparency and consistency in the management of funds.

B&R’s Forensic, Valuation, and Litigation Services Group understands that these situations are sensitive and complex. Organizations often seek fraud/forensic services for any one of three reasons. First, individuals may uncover inconsistencies that suggest the possibility of intentional or unintentional failures of the internal control process. Second, a crisis may have arisen that immediately brought a latent issue to the forefront. And third, a legal claim may be developing in which a specific analysis of the financial implications of a civil or criminal matter may be required.

Our certified fraud examiners and investigators have extensive experience helping organizations develop proactive and reactive fraud capabilities. Our risk management services involve an integrated approach to help you prevent, detect, and investigate fraud. Whether the situation arises proactively or reactively, the cornerstone of a successful forensic investigation begins with attention to details, sensitivity to issues, and commitment to confidential and impartial analysis.

When it comes to fraud and forensic services, not all firms are alike. It’s a specialized field where a consultant’s professional certifications and the company’s commitment to continuing education make a big difference. At Boyer & Ritter, our Forensic, Valuation, and Litigation Services Group is led by personnel who are members of the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners (ACFE), The Society of Forensic Certified Public Accountants, and the National Association of Certified Valuation Analysts (NACVA). These individuals have obtained the designations of Certified Fraud Examiner (CFE), Forensic Certified Public Accountant (FCPA), and Certified Forensic Financial Analyst (CFFA) designations.
