Shareholder disputes, allegations of fraud, or personal matters such as divorce proceedings or disagreements over business succession can significantly impact the successful operation of a business. B&R's Forensic, Valuation and Litigation Services Group is experienced in these matters and will work with you to develop a strategy to address the issues. We are experienced at working with attorneys to prepare for pre-trial settlement negotiations and trial proceedings, to determine and quantify losses or damages, and to evaluate the financial information presented by the opposing party. Throughout the litigation process—from fact finding to resolution—B&R will work with you at every step to ensure that you are prepared to achieve a successful outcome, for you or for your client.

The B&R Advantage, our unique approach to each client engagement, ensures that you will work directly with a team of specialized experts under the direction of a seasoned partner in the firm. In addition to regular professional development opportunities pursued by each member of our Forensic, Valuation and Litigation Services Group, you will also benefit from the industry-specific knowledge within each of the firm's practice groups. As a result, B&R personnel understand how to respond both to the challenges of your litigation, and the unique accounting implications associated with your industry.

We have provided litigation support services to a wide range of businesses and organizations, in disputes involving valuation, ownership transition, family issues, fraud, audit issues, income tax matters and damage claims.
